Cities Adopt Zone Plans To Check Vice and Crime

University of Chicago Investigator Finds Close Relations Between Law-Breaking and Encroaching of Business And Industry on Residence Districts; Search Blamed.

By OLIVER SHERWOOD, Special Correspondent of The Union
(Copyright, 1925, Consolidated Press Association)
CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—If all that is needed to solve many aspects of this country's vice and crime problem is an intelligent application of city planning and zoning, as a study made at the University of Chicago indicates, then the situation isn't hopeless.
That conclusion is drawn on the premise that most cities already have recognized the error of their ways in permitting indiscriminate expansion of industry into residential sections and are remedying the mistake by enacting more or less effective zoning ordinances.
Down at the root of much of the vice and crime has been the disorderly advance of business and industry into resident streets. Walter Cade Reckless, of the University of Chicago, found after a comparative study made as part of the university's local community survey.
"Neighborhood deterioration through the 'jumping' process," Mr. Reckless asserted, "seems to be a natural accompaniment of the growth of a city. As the city grows, business and industry encroach upon residential districts in the inevitable succession of the mill and there are multitudinous changes or decaying parts of the city have always furnished a favorable habitat for vice and crime."
This sporadic commercial expansion has called into existence zoning plans and ordinances. Through the device of restricted areas, a check is set up over the uncontrolled random advance of commercial activity. It is clear that disorderly business and commercial growth speeds up the junking of neighborhoods and indirectly is a factor in the disintegration of local community organization and family life; whereas a more orderly and controlled progress is calculated to make for greater stability of a well organized neighborhood life and the preservation of the type of community organization that can battle the inroads of vice. Indeed, it may be found that zoning measures, intelligently administered, may be a chief factor in the control of vice.
The ready recognition cities have been giving of late to zoning ordinances would indicate that they are prepared to give a trial to the scheme for restricting encroachment of industrial and business sections into residential districts. What effect this division of cities into residential, business and industrial districts will have on vice and crime remains to be seen.
But Mr. Reckless makes a number of other observations on vice which have a bearing on the present problem. He finds that customs of society, developed through social practices and not instincts determine behavior.
"Vice is not an instinct," he observes, "but rather a socially organized interest in or desire for thrills, and there are multitudinous objects in a person's social milieu that are capable of satisfying wishes for excitement in just as many different ways."
The thing to do to prevent spread of vice, in his opinion, is to remove the broken down, decaying parts of cities and give their inhabitants a chance to break through the social barriers.

Y.W.C.A. Travelers' Aid Cared For 335 Cases During August

Report on Humanitarian Work Shows Assistance Given 552 Persons.

That the Y. W. C. A. Travelers' Aid department is accomplishing much worthwhile work here along humanitarian lines is evidenced in a report for activities during August, compiled by Miss Gill Thomas and Mrs. Anna V. Speer and read at a recent meeting of the local Travelers' Aid committee at the home of Mrs. Thomas O'Hallaran, 4480 Hortensia street.
According to the report, 335 cases were handled and 552 persons were assisted during August. Problems that confronted the Travelers' Aid workers included "failure to meet their friends," "physical disability," "children traveling alone," "unemployment" and "economic dependency."
One outstanding case was that of a young boy, a special charge of the probation officer here, who was to be sent to his relatives in Connecticut. The boy's mother was a patient in a hospital here and his father was deceased, and it was necessary that he be sent to his grandparents as soon as possible. A letter, the report said, was sent to New York announcing the time of the boy's arrival and the Chicago Travelers' Aid was wired to meet him and see that he was placed on a New York train.
He was put on the train here with a letter to the conductor and was met at the train by the Travelers' Aid workers who would meet him at Chicago and New York. Letters received later from the two eastern cities testified to the faithful care he received at both points, especially at New York where his grandmother awaited him at the train.
The report listed many similar cases in which both young and old travelers were aided by the local "Y" department.
Miss Margaret O'Connell, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. here, told the committee of the honor accorded to the organization in the invitation extended to Mrs. Edith Terry Bremer of the national board, to attend the international conference on the protection of girls and women emigrants held at Geneva Sept. 8 and 9.
Following the meeting refreshments were served and the committee members enjoyed a view of some pictures painted by Miss Thomas while at Laguna Beach this summer. Members of the committee included Mrs. Carl A. Johnson, chairman; Mrs. Thomas O'Hallaran, Miss Lefie Ried, Mrs. Mary Kilmer, Miss Beatrice Nave, Mrs. Sarah Patrick, Mrs. F. R. Burnham, Mrs. A. H. Kayser and Mrs. W. T. Skilling.

FOUR DIVORCE ACTIONS FILED

Four divorce suits were filed in superior court yesterday and the court almost kept up with the filings by granting two interlocutory decrees and one annulment. The divorces granted by Judge W. P. Cary freed Libbia F. Marron from Joe A. Marron, and A. Lyle Brooks from Minnie E. Brooks. Mildred C. Wright was granted an annulment of her marriage to Allyn H. Wright.
Kathryn F. Andrews asked divorce from Herbert E. Andrews on the grounds of cruelty and failure to provide. Maude Howell asked divorce from Walter G. Howell, charging desertion and failure to provide. The couple was married in 1908 and have a son of 16 and a daughter of 9. Mrs. Howell asks custody of both children.
Doris E. Russell, charged physical violence and failure to provide are the offenses alleged by Eselle V. Russell in seeking divorce from Ray S. Russell. She asks alimony and custody of the two children.
James B. Elliott petitioned for divorce from Josephine F. Elliott, charging her with cruelty and infidelity. They were married in 1920.
500 OUT IN TAXI STRIKE
—BOSTON, Sept. 19.—Five hundred Checker taxicab drivers here went on strike today.

Orchestra Seats To Be Assigned Monday, Tuesday

John Davidson, membership secretary of the San Diego Philharmonic Orchestra society, announces he will be in the box office of the Spreckels theatre tomorrow and Tuesday, from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., to enroll new members and assign seats.
The orchestra season opens Thursday, Oct. 29, and the society will present the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra in a series of six concerts, closing in April.
Judging from interest already manifested by the music-loving public, it is anticipated that a sold out house will greet the orchestra at its opening concert.

One's Charm of Manner Is Really an Important Asset

Polish, refinement, those little niceties of deportment and expression which mark the man and woman of culture as different, are attained more rapidly through association with good music than in any other way.
